

Tradie Picker Tool

Renovations can be a long and stressful time for any household and starting it off on the best footing possible can mean the difference between a 6 month quoted renovation and a 2 year extension.

Whether you're looking to renovate your bathroom, back yard or your whole house, one of the most important yet difficult tasks is finding the right people to make it happen. Use our Tradie Picker Tool to find out who you'll need for your next big project!

YOU NEED: A contractor.

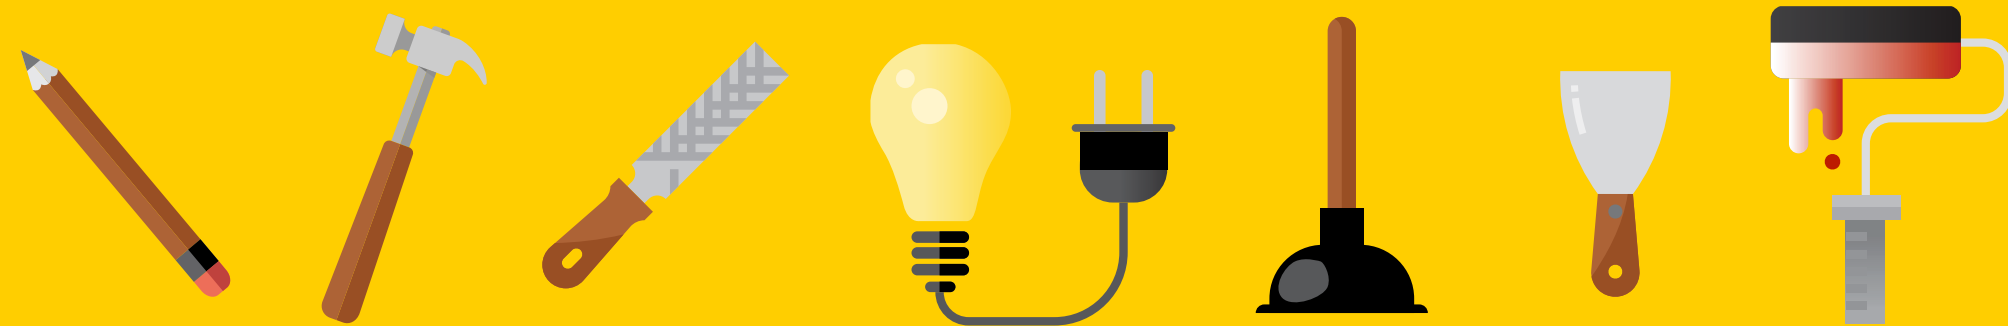

A licensed contractor will manage the entire production for you from start to finish. They will design the renovation according to the ideas and goals you give them (or hire a designer), then give you an estimate of the total cost, including supplies, work time from other tradies, and their own charge.

YOU NEED: A designer, a builder, a carpenter, an electrician, a plumber, a plasterer, a painter, or more.

A full-house renovation is easily the largest task possible and organising it all yourself is essentially a full-time job, so you'll need to prepare to invest just as much time into planning and managing this project as a professional contractor would.

Fortunately, finding all of the services you need in your area and getting in touch with each one for quotes is easy with Yellow Pages.

YOU NEED: A cabinet installer.

Hiring a cabinet installer will ensure those doors and drawers open and close properly, everything is level, and nothing is out of place. Before choosing your installer take a look at their reviews to make sure you're setting yourself up for a reliable tradie and a breezy installation.

YOU NEED: An electrician or a plumber.

If the store doesn't install it for you, you may need an electrician or a plumber to install your new appliances. A plumber will install your dishwasher, while an electrician is needed for other areas such as a gas stove tops and range hoods. YOU NEED: A flooring contractor.

A flooring contractor is someone who can install your wooden floors or tiles with precision. That is to say, the patterns will actually lineup, the tiles won't come loose, the pieces will fit around corners, and you won't be feeling odd bumps in your floors for years to come.

YOU NEED: A kitchen bench installer.

Technically speaking, a carpenter, cabinet installer, or general tradesperson could all install a kitchen bench. These workers are adept at dealing with timber, granite, laminate, and marble materials. Simply ask them about their experience with your chosen material and read their reviews to make sure they have the skills for the job.

YOU NEED: A plumber.

Seeing as plumbers are specially skilled tradies, this is definitely one area where it's a good idea to hire a professional. You generally shouldn't consider DIY apart from changing simple fittings and washers unless you're a licensed plumber. Keep in mind that for any gas work your plumber will need to have a gasfitting license.

YOU NEED: A painter.

A professional painter will ensure your walls get the attention they deserve. This means proper preparation with sanding and cleaning, painters' tape and covers over your floors to ensure paint stays where it should, as well as a smooth, streak-free application. They can get the job done quickly and their professional tools will help to ensure a premium finish.

YOU NEED: A carpet installer or flooring contractor.

Generally, carpet installers and flooring contractors are both equally capable of fitting carpets and laying solid wood flooring. In both cases, they will usually also include removing and disposing of existing flooring as part of your quote.

YOU NEED: A builder.

A professional builder can take your ideas, add their own tips and advice, and draw up plans for an awesome deck for hosting plenty of backyard barbies. They'll ensure it meets council approval requirements, that everything is level, that nothing breaks or moves, and that it looks good to boot.

YOU NEED: A landscaper or gardener.

A landscaper is usually handy with anything garden related whereas gardeners are generally more suited to jobs that don't involve redesigning your backyard. Either tradie can tidy up your existing garden so it will seem like weeds never existed and the lawn doesn't even know what a bald spot is. Chat to both to find out if they're capable of the ideas you have in mind, and ask for quotes to see who can stick to your budget.

YOU NEED: A water feature specialist.

From a fountain to a pond to a full waterfall, a water feature in your back garden will certainly add a touch of class. When you purchase one of these products from a garden centre, the store will often have installers who can do the work for you, or they may have trusted contractors to suggest. A water feature specialist is part landscaper, part plumber, as they must have both garden and plumbing knowledge to make things run smoothly.
